Dear Dr. Runge:

Your interest in changing standards for national fuel economy for automobiles affords great hope to all of us who are concerned about environmental pollution and the potential for global warming. The Union of Concerned Scientists has designed an SUV which will surpass the 27.5 mpg standard which is set for other cars at very little extra cost.

It is my earnest hope that you will back up your expressions of interest in improving fuel economy with genuine, effective action.

Yours truly,

Richard Davenport
